

Abstract Of The Disclosure

A remote control holder comprised of a flat surface for the placement and attachment of a plurality of remote control units using attachment strips. This surface extends into an upswept handle feature enabling the user to easily handle the assembly during use. In addition the handle aids the user in removing or placing the apparatus onto a flat surface such as but not limited to a coffee table.